Milk Producers Take Formal Stand Against Customary Summer Reduc-

A meeting of the local branch of the Co-operative Milk Producers' company was held here Friday at the livery sta-ble in the rear of the Hotel Hooker on ble in the rear of the Hotel Hooker on Bank street. A committee was appointed to notify the officers of the Boston and Providence milk contracting companies that the local branch demands that the price for milk remain the same during the summer months that it has been during the past winter and also to have the Providence men come under the same rulings as the Boston men.

The local branch decided to stand by the decision being taken by milk producers all over New England. It the milk depot men do not accede to their demands, the producers do not their demands, the producers do not their demands, the producers do not here the same rulings as the Boston men do not accede to their demands, the producers do not their demands, the producers do not here the same rulings as the Boston men do not accede to their demands, the producers do not here the same rulings as the Boston men do not accede to their demands, the producers do not here the same rulings as the Boston men do not accede to their demands, the producers do not here the same rulings as the Boston men.

The meeting was largely attended, representatives being present from Franklin, Windham, Hebron Colchester, Salem, Lebanon and other nearby ter, Salem, Lebanon and other nearby surrounding towns.

Nathaniel Manning of North Franklin, president of the local branch, was in the chair. He was one of the men who attended the meeting in Boston April 27, that adopted a resolution upholding the action of the directors of Boston Co-operate Milk Producers' association.

association.

It is claimed by the producers that they can tie up from 20,000 to 49,000 cans of milk a day from entering Boston. A paper headed: "We, the undersigned, agree to stop the shipment of milk May 1 unless our demands are compiled with," was circulated on Friday and at the close of the meeting this josix signatures were affixed to the paper. The meeting was adjourned subject to the call of the secretary, L. M. Lord of Hebron.

Improving Lawn at Town Building. The large lawn in front of the Town building is undergoing a transformation needed for some time. It always looked fairly well for a few weeks in early spring and summer, but as soon as the hot wave struck in the grass burned up and the spacious lawn was a wretched sight, owing to lack of sufficient bottom for the grass to take proper rooting. In the places where the soil was less fertile sections of turf were taken out and rich loam filled in, and the remainder of the entire front lawn at both sides of the main entrance is to be top dressed with from 5 to 8 or 10 inches of a The large lawn in front of the Town

200 DOGS REGISTERED Out of a Total of 500 in the Borougi

Only about 200 of the 500 dogs in the town of Killingly had been registered up to Friday night. This means that there will be the usual rush to meet the requirements of the law during today and Monday. Although there has been some question as to whether owners should legally be allowed to have Monday, May, 2, as a final day to attend to registration, the statute providing that May 1, which falls on Sunday this year, shall be the last day. Herman O. Averill, commissioner of domestic animals, in a letter to Town Clerk Frank T. Fenton, says that the matter has been referred to Attorney General M. H. Holcombe, and that it has been decided to give the dog owners the benefit of the doubt, and to allow them to have Monday as an additional day to register dogs and receive kennel licenses without paying the extra fee of one dollar. Andrew Squires.

The funeral of Andrew Squires was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of George Hatch in South Windham and was attended by many friends and acquaintances, Rev. Harry Grimes, pastor of the Congregational church at Windham Center, officiated. Friends officiated as bearers. Burial was in the Windham Center cemetery. Funeral Directors Elmore & Shepard of this city were in charge of the arrangements. Investigating Damage Done by Deer

George B. McCracken made an official visit to Windham in the automobile of Selectman Peckham and investigated the extent of the damage alleged to have been done by deer in that vicinity of late. A number of complaints have been coming in and the board wanted to see just how bad the damage was. It was found to be considerable as deer are numerous hereabouts. Students of Killingly High school as interpreters of dramatic roles charmingly entertained a large audience in the Town half Friday evening, when the mirth creating play "Back to Nature" was successfully given.

The plot of the piece revolved about the incident of the going to the city of a deacon's wife, her absence opening the opportunity for an impersonation of her character by a blithesome young relative. Naturally, complications ensued, these affording live action, striking situations, entangling complexities and the usual happy ending. The staging of the play was under the direction of the members of the faculty, Miss Mollie D. Murphy, an experienced elocutionist, having charge as coach.

Favorable comment is due the members of the cast for the capable manner in which they delivered their lines and for the generally pleasing manner in which they blended their personalities into the characters assigned. The action was maintained with ease and effectiveness and the presentation as a whole was an honor to the school.

Rhubard Pie.

Pour boiling water over two cups of canned rhubarb, then drain. Beat the yolks of three eggs light, add a heaping tablespoonful of flour, one-fourth cup of water, a tablespoonful of melted butter, sugar to taste and the rhubarb cut small. Mix well and bake in an open crust. When done make a meringue of the egg whites and sugar and spread on top of the pie. Brown lightly, Joe the Turk Coming.

Rice Pudding.

Prepare one cup of rice and cook it in boiling water, in a double boiler, until the water is absorbed; then add two cups of scalded milk and cook until the rice is soft. Add one and a half tablespoons of butter, one and a half tablespoons of sugar, and a teaspoon of salt. Beat one egg and add it to the rice. Now cook it about one minute, and pour it into a dish ready for serving. Mix the same amount of sugar as before (one and a half tablespoons) and one-imit temspoon of cinnamon and sprinkle it over the pudding. Add some pleces of butter, about one and a half tablespoons, but do not stir. When served hot one will find the pudding very delicious, as I have been using it regularly for a long time with very gratifying results.
